Develop a passion for learning. If you do, you will never cease to grow.

Anthony J. D'Angelo

Some things you need to know:

- ★ Returning to school is one of the best ways to expand your employment opportunities. The Cherry Point Personal and Professional Development Education Program offers academic advising for active duty personnel and their spouses, as well as civilian employees. There are four schools aboard the installation, and a variety of online visiting schools. You can start out earning a vocational certificate or you can start or finish an associates, bachelor or graduate program.
 - ★ The United States Marine Corps does not currently provide tuition assistance for military spouses. The Department of Defense, however, is providing financial support for spouses who are interested in earning a certificate or degree in certain fields. Please go to page 4 of this booklet for additional information on the My Career Advancement Accounts (MYCAA). There are also many organizations that provide scholarships, loans, and grants to Marine Corps families. Information on those other programs can be found throughout this booklet.
 - ★ Every college/university has its own financial aid office, with staff members who are trained to help you maximize the aid that you may receive. Be sure to make an appointment with the financial aid office to discuss options available at the school, through the local community, state and federal government.
 - ★ There are several different forms of financial aid. There are loans, which must be repaid, and there are scholarships and grants, which are “free money”. In order to receive grants or loans, students must complete a Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). This is an application that is processed by the Department of Education, and the results are sent to your school in order to determine the amount of aid you will receive. Each institution will have their own deadline for submitting this application. Check with your school for their deadline. This application must be done annually.
- 1.) Scholarships. Scholarships do not have to be repaid as long as you perform to the expectation of the fund. Some, but not all scholarships, require you to have a FAFSA on file. Scholarships often require that you meet specific criteria. The criteria are not always academic, they can be based upon your family dynamic, demographic, financial need, academic performance, academic major/career goal, geographical location, hometown, etc. There are several "scholarship finders" available online. These databases, such as www.fastweb.com, will often send you updates regarding scholarships that you may be eligible for. Installation clubs and organizations such as Officer's Wives Club, Navy Marine Corps Relief Society, and others also offer scholarships.

Unfortunately there are scam artists who will try and trick you into paying a fee for a scholarship. Please take a quick look at the information from the Better Business Bureau. Never give your personal information to someone who contacts you without you submitting a request for information. Take the time to do a little research before you give someone your personal information. See the examples of scams from the Better Business Bureau below:

The BBB recommends that you be suspicious if a representative tells you:

"The scholarship is guaranteed or your money back." In reality no one can guarantee that they will get you a grant or scholarship. And the refund guarantees that are offered usually have so many conditions or strings attached that it is almost impossible for consumers to get their money back.

"You cannot get this information anywhere else." Actually, scholarship information is widely available in books, from libraries and financial aid offices and on the Internet, if you are willing to search for it.

"We will do all the work." Only parents and students can really determine and provide the financial information needed to complete the forms.

"You have been selected by a national foundation to receive a scholarship." If you have not entered a competition sponsored by the foundation, this claim is highly unlikely.

"May I have your credit card or bank account number to hold this scholarship?" This is never a requirement for a legitimate scholarship offer.

"The scholarship will cost some money." Legitimate scholarship offers never require payment of any kind

2.) Grants. Grants are often administered by the state or federal level and do not need to be repaid. A FAFSA must be filed in order to receive grants. Check with your institution and search online for academic grant options.

3.) Loans. Loans are a type of financial aid that must be repaid. Payments and interest may be deferred for as much as 6 months after you graduate school or drop below part-time enrollment. Loans are offered federally and through your academic institution.

GI Bill Transfer of Benefits - Under the new Post 9/11 Veterans Education Assistance Act of 2008 Marines who have served a minimum of 6 years active duty and have committed to serve an additional four years may elect to transfer a portion of their education benefits to their spouse or children. A child may not use the benefit until he/she has attained a secondary school diploma (or equivalency certificate), or reached 18 years of age. Marines can find the specifics on the transfer process in MARADMIN 421/09.

To begin the transferability process, access the webpage: <https://www.dmdc.osd.mil/TEB/>
